DETAILED ACTION

1. Applicant's communication filed on 10/10/06 has been carefully considered by the examiner. The arguments advanced therein are persuasive with respect to the rejection of record, and those rejection are accordingly withdraw. In view of a further consideration, however, a new rejection is set forth below. This action is not made final.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 57-60 and 62 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by Reeves et al (US 6, 426, 611).

Regarding claim 57, Reeves discloses in figures 3-4, a phase controller (310) for generating a plurality of phase-shifted burst mode signals, and regulating power to a plurality of loads (114-118) using respective said phase shifted burst mode signals and a generating a plurality of AC signals based at least in part on respective phase-shifted burst mode signals and supplying respective AC signals to respective loads (114-118). See col.7, lines 60-67 to col.11, lines 1-62.

Regarding claim 58, Reeves discloses in figures 3-4, (PWM (402)) for generating a PWM signal and wherein power delivered to each respective load (114, 116, 118) determined by the pulse width of said PWM signal.

Regarding claim 59, Reeves discloses in figures 3-4, power switch (302) for determining a frequency of at least one of said phase-shift burst mode signals based on a frequency selection signal.

Regarding claim 62, Reeves discloses in figures 3-4, a switch power (302) for turning power to at least one load on and off based on, at least in part, the state of a respective phase-shifted burst mode signal.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claim 60 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over by Reeves et al (US 6, 426, 611).

Reeves essentially discloses the claimed invention but does not explicitly disclose that the loads are CCFLs. It would have been an obvious matter of design choice to employ Reeves in any lamp in order to maximize the usage of his invention, since applicant does not disclose that, all of these limitations can solve any stated problem and for any particular purpose. Therefore, it appears that the invention would not provide any improvement but merely apply the invention in different presentation.

Citation of relevant prior art

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Mader et al (US 6,469,454) and Sattler et al. (US 6,904,112) are cited to show a cold cathode fluorescent lamp controller.
